There are historical sketches of the press, distinguished men, literary men and women, fraternities and an interesting article about the negroes. The resources of Montgomery county are well written up and on the who's the paper is a most valuable presentation of the affairs of the city and county. Typographically it is most artistically arranged and the enterprising publishers are to be congratulated on scoring a big success.

Ready to Make Settlement of Arabic Case According to Our Wishes.

DISAVOWAL BY BERNSTORFF

Official Washington Gratified Over Diplomatic Victory. Ambassador Pleased.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Germany has acceded to the American demands for settlement of the Arabic case. The imperial government, through its ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, disavows the sinking of the vessel, announces that it has so notified the submarine commander who made the attack, expresses regret for the loss of American lives, and agrees to pay an indemnity to the families of Americans lost.

Official Washington was both gratified and relieved by the diplomatic victory. The communication delivered to Secretary Lansing by its ambassador pursuant to general instructions from his government spread absolute confidence that there would be no more submarine controversies between the United States and Germany, for the document reveals that stringent orders have been given to submarine commanders to prevent a recurrence of such incidents as the Arabic.

Since this case embraces the principles for which President Wilson contended in his notes following the torpedoing of the Lusitania and Falaba, concessions made by Germany to the American viewpoint were generally regarded as paving the way for amicable settlement of all the cases which have threatened severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

R. H. McGaughey made a big winning on his live stock at the Pennyroyal Fair, raking in awards aggregating $160. He made a clean sweep on Polled Durham cattle and captured several prizes on hogs.

HAS NOT REPLIED TO ULTIMATUM

King Ferdinand Is Committed Definitely to The Germanic Allies.

GREECE'S ATTITUDE IN DOUBT

Ruler Informs Him He Is Unable to Support Policy of His Ministry.

London, Oct. 6.—Russia's ultimatum to Bulgaria expired at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, but so far as known in London, no answer had been received and none was expected.

It is taken for granted here that King Ferdinand and his ministers are committed definitely to the Germanic allies, and in return for territory to be ceded after the war—perhaps some ports, including Constantinople and all that remains of European Turkey—has undertaken to assist actively in operations against Serbia, thus hoping to open the way to the sea of Marmara for the Austro-German army.

The entente powers, in this belief, have landed or are landing a force of 70,000 at Saloniki to protect the main railway through Serbia and Greece to give what assistance it can to the Balkan allies, should they be attacked by Bulgaria. This infringement of Greek neutrality has brought forth a formal protest from the Greek government, and one rumor is that Premier Venizelos may resign.

Greece is able to put 180,000 men, fully equipped, in the field. Although the mobilization, which includes men up to 43 years of age, probably will call for 300,000 troops, those over the 180,000 cannot be armed. It is said the government has sufficient funds to continue on a war footing for one month.

The next move devolves on Bulgaria, and as soon as she moves Anglo-French troops being mobilized will be put in motion, while the fleets in the Black sea and the Aegean will resume their roles.

Meanwhile Russia, whose armies have for five months been retreating, has begun an energetic offensive along a wide front from Riga to southeast of Vilna, and, according to reports, has met with considerable success. This is denied by Berlin, which says that all Russian attacks have been repulsed.

In the west the big guns again have undertaken the task of attempting to level the German entrenchments, presumably in preparation for a continuation of the attacks which proved successful in Artois and Champagne

Good Selections.

In sending back to Hopkinsville the present pastor, Dr. Lewis Powell, to continue his work as pastor of the Hopkinsville church, the Methodist Conference has greatly pleased not only his own church, but the people generally in Hopkinsville. Dr. Powell during his first year here has already made a reputation, or rather sustained a reputation already made, as an able minister and a most agreeable gentleman. In addition he has shown himself to be a worker and leader of great force and effectiveness and has already put under way the construction of a new church building to cost $50,000. We congratulate the Methodist brothers upon his return. Rev. Virgil Elgin, in charge of the local circuit, is also quite popular here, socially and as a preacher, and his return is also gratifying. The Presiding Elder, Dr. T. L. Hulse, was at Pembroke before he came here a year ago and is making himself as highly esteemed in Hopkinsville as he was in his former home. Pembroke's new pastor is Rev. W. P. Gordon, who is transferred from Cadiz, where his work has attracted attention in this country. Upon the whole, Christian county churches have reason to congratulate themselves upon their good fortune in the annual "drawing."

A heavy decline in the condition of the growing cotton crop, almost double the average decline of the last ten years, during September, has decreased the production prospects forecast earlier in the season by almost a million bales. The department of agriculture has estimated the crop at 10,950,000 equivalent 500-pound bales, which would be the smallest crop since 1909. Following this announcement Monday, futures advanced more than $1 per bale in a few minutes, and all prices were soon up from 58 to 66 points over Saturday's closing.

The next move is evidently the attempted relief of Constantinople. From the central powers' side have come amplified reports of the great weight of men and metal being piled up preparatory to a blow against Serbia from the side, as the first step in what the popular imagination has accepted as a fact—German determination to smash through the corner of Serbia and link up with Bulgaria, creating a new battle front from the Austrian border to Constantinople.

John D. Rockefeller can afford to subscribe for the bonds of the allies, as long as he can sell them gasoline for their automobiles and other purposes.

BUILD ROADS IN MOUNTAINS

California Highway Commissioner
Points Way for Opening of Arable
Lands—Convicts to Be Used.

"If you will give us the convicts to build roads through the mountains there are 7,500,000 acres of arable land on the eastern plateau of the Sierras that can be opened for settlement," said Charles F. Stern, highway commissioner of California, in supporting the bill which passed the California legislature to permit prisoners to be employed in road building.

California prisoners have not been employed in this work other than in a small way around the prison, but the need of opening the mountain districts has started road building by the prisoners.

The act just passed is modeled after Colorado legislation, under which excellent results have been obtained. The highway department is authorized to make requisition upon the prison department for the number of convicts required, and is to organize and maintain the camps as well as supervise the road work. The prison department, however, retains control over the discipline of the prisoners, and, although the national committee on prisons and prison labor believes better results can be had under the West Virginia system, where the prison department maintains the camps, both the convicts and the state of California will assuredly benefit under the new legislation.

The men are to be worked under the honor system, and the prison department is empowered to grant additional good time allowance to convicts employed in this work, conditioned upon their loyal, obedient and efficient cooperation with the state.

To bring about the earlier completion of the state highways which will make the isolated regions accessible, the bill went into effect ninety days after the adjournment of the legislature.

Reporting the successful passage of the act to the national committee on prisons and prison labor, Mr. Stern writes: "We expect to use from 1,000 to 1,500 convicts on our mountain roads, and a year hence will doubtless have very interesting facts to relate."

California is the last of the western states to employ her convicts in this way, and it is hoped the new legislation is a step toward the reconstruction of her whole prison system along the lines advanced by those who have the welfare of the convict at heart.

Bottomless Illinois Roads.
While the American submarine can cross the ocean and come back on one helping of fuel is a great machine, the perfected submarine will be able to travel on the bottomless "roads" in southern Illinois after a rain.

Influence of Automobiles.
In spite of much lingering prejudice against automobiles their influence in improving roads is everywhere in evidence in a way which cannot be denied.

Help Strawberry Plants.
If strawberry runners are not rooting well throw a little dirt over ends of the runners or places at which plantlets have started.

Supplement the Pastures.
Loss, expense and risk hasten in the wake of withered pastures, unless supplemental feeds are promptly supplied.

The Greatest Tax.
It costs the American farmer more to feed his insect foes than it does to educate his children.

Woman's Greatest Trouble.

Big Sandy, Tenn.—Mrs. Lucy Cantrell, of this place, says: "Every two weeks, I had to go to bed and stay there several days. I suffered untold misery. Nothing seemed to help me, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Although I had been afflicted with womanly weakness for seven years, Cardui helped me more than anything else ever did. It is surely the best tonic for women on earth." Weakness is woman's greatest trouble. Cardui is woman's greatest medicine, because it overcomes that weakness and brings back strength. In the past 50 years, Cardui helped over a million women. Try it for your troubles, today. —Advertisement

START TRAINING BULL EARLY

Inserting Nose Ring is Simple and Short Operation—Composition Metal Does Not Rust.

A bull's training must be started early. A light weight ring should be inserted in his nose when he is from nine to twelve months old, but under no circumstances should he be led by the ring until three or four months after so that the nose can heal up well.

Inserting the nose ring is a simple and short operation when properly done. First tie the bull securely to a post by the head and horns, then take a common trocar and cannula, well sterilized, and push it through the thinnest part of the membrane that separates the nostrils, withdraw the trocar, leaving the cannula in the opening. Put one end of the opened ring in the pointed end of the cannula and then carefully withdraw cannula, which brings the ring into the opening and after closing ring and putting in the screw, the job is done. Before the operation, the ring should be examined and all rough edges carefully filed down so there is nothing to irritate the nose and keep it raw and bleeding.

When the animal is about two to two and one-half years old, the light ring should be removed and a good heavy ring inserted. Iron rings should not be used as they rust and keep the bull's nose raw and sore. The best are made of brass or bronze composition metal and do not rust.

In tying up the bull by the nose, one should be careful to avoid frightening him, causing him to jump back and slit the ring out of his nose. It is safest to pass the tie chain through the nose ring and then up and around his horns and when he jerks back most of the strain comes on the horns and not at the nose.

PROPER TOOLS FOR DAIRYING

Manure Spreader Is One of Most Profitable Implements—Silo Is Regarded as Essential.

It is impossible to give a specific answer to the question as to what tools a dairyman should possess. Much depends upon a man's pocketbook and the possibility of his changing work with neighbors to get the use of their tools, and upon labor conditions in general. For instance, a manure spreader is one of the most profitable implements for a farmer with any amount of dressing to distribute. Yet it is possible to handle the manure in the old way if a man simply cannot buy a spreader.

If you are dairying you ought to have a silo, and that means a silage cutter and an engine, unless you can arrange with a neighbor to do the work. If you raise potatoes in any quantity a planter, sprayer, and surely a digger, will perform the work most economically. Yet it is to get along without these. Of course, you would not expect to compete very successfully with growers who have such improved machinery. This class of tools is in use only a portion of the year, and it ties up your capital to your disadvantage if you have but little to begin with. There are certain things that every farmer is expected to have, such as wagons, plows, harrows, mowing machine, hayrake, etc.

FEED CALVES IN STANCHIONS

Discourages Desire to Suck One Another's Ears—Wooden Device Is Entirely Satisfactory.

There are several good reasons for feeding calves in stanchions. The calves can be fed their milk, then their grain, and after they have eaten the grain they will lose their desire to suck one another's ears. A stanchion made of wood will be entirely satisfactory. It should be made from 3 to 3½ feet high and 18 to 24 inches from center to center, with the neck space 4 to 5 inches wide. It is built in the same manner as the old style rigid stanchion. The calf should be fastened while eating, but loosened from the stanchions after it has eaten its grain. The calf pens and stanchions should be built in the south side of the barn, where plenty of sunshine and light can be had. There is no disinfectant that will take the place of sunshine.

WORK FOR THE UNDERTAKERS

Scarcity of Business and Unpaid Bills
Makes Large Margin of Profit
Absolute Necessity.

In the United States there are today something more than 30,000 undertakers, declares the Pictorial Review. Attracted by the enormous profits to be made in funeral goods, more men are constantly swarming into the business. At the time the School of Philanthropy made its investigation there were, according to a church paper, 410 undertakers in Chicago. On the average, each undertaker secured a trifle more than one funeral a week. In New York city there were 1,100 undertakers and about 74,000 deaths annually, which gave each undertaker an average of less than four funerals in three weeks. For the country as a whole, the average was less than one funeral a week for each undertaker. Some undertakers got more than one-half of all the business during a given fortnight, leaving 429 undertakers to divide the other half. Many undertakers had no funerals at all during these two weeks. In the course of an entire year they would secure only a handful. Others would get only one or two funerals a month. Yet each undertaker had to keep up his establishment—where he had one—pay office rent, bills for light and heat, clerk hire and other expenses, and, in addition, make a living, all from the profits of one or two funerals a month.

But it is not the lack of business alone that makes necessary this great margin of profit. One of the leading undertakers of New York city said to me: "There is every cent of $50,000 in unpaid bills on our books. We have to make up that loss or we could not stay in business. So we have to charge high prices and the people who do pay make up for those who don't."

WATER LILIES ARE PASSING

Beautiful Flowers Have Greatly De-creased in Indiana—Almost Dis-appeared in Some Lakes.

Many of the smaller lakes of Indiana a few years ago floated an abundance of water lilies. As the years have gone by and the numbers of excursionists and summer guests at these places have increased, the lilies have greatly decreased and from some lakes have almost disappeared.

What a beautiful flower, beautiful in its mystical loveliness is the white water lily which belongs to the same species as the lotus, which the ancient Egyptians held sacred! How lovely is our lily floating amid its great rounded leaves closing at night to reappear the next morning in all its unspotted purity. July and August are the months for this flower. An old writer in enthusiastic admiration of this lily says:

"Ah, how lovely it looks, floating double, lily and shadow, with its broad leaves looking like green resting places for this queen of waters to sit upon, while dipping her ivory sandals in the yielding silver; or, when rocked by a gentle breeze one may fancy they look like a moving fairy fleet with low green hulls and white sails, slowly making for the shore!"

But unless the vandal hand of the visitor to these lakes is stayed these lilies will soon be as rare as white blackbirds.

This is the Smallest Motor?

A correspondent of the Electrical World writes that he has just completed a motor which weighs only 5.5

grains and is, he believes, the smallest in the world. Its commutator, which measures .045 inch in diameter, is made up of four gold segments insulated from each other with mica. The shaft on which the commutator is mounted is .009 inch in diameter. Fiber insulation is used between the commutator and the shaft. The tiny armature, .09 inch in diameter, has four pole pieces and is wound with No. 40 silk covered copper wire. The weight of the revolving part is 1.25 grains. Between the armature and the yolk two field coils are provided. The silver brushes measure .012 inch in diameter and are held against the commutator by springs .004 inch in diameter. In over all dimensions the motor measures 13-1/2 inch long and 11-1/2 inch high. All visible parts are finished in Roman gold. When connected to a small flashlight battery the motor runs at a very high speed.

Feed Dogs Whipped Cream.

The discovery that women of Stettin, Germany, have been feeding whipped cream to their pet dogs, while mothers have had a hard time procuring milk for their babies, has aroused a storm of protest from the families of soldiers.

Some idea of the magistrate's opinion of the Stettin women and their dogs may be gleaned from the following notice recently published by him in a local paper:

"Such a contemptible proceeding, which makes of self-sacrifice and renunciation a mockery, is, it is to be hoped, the exception and not the rule.

In the meantime, those who have not suspected the existing state of affairs

must be shocked and confounded that Stettin should so be exposed to shame."—Exchange.

REGARD FOR THE LAW.

Ignorance of the Law is no excuse and disregard of the Law is a crime. When Laws are so obnoxious as to afford excuses for non-compliance they should be changed, and the people have this right. "If your right hand offend you, cut it off," was no idle injunction, but means the offense should be removed rather than the mutilation of the member.

Our Tax Laws are distasteful and detrimental, but the remedy should be to amend them instead of allowing them to undermine the morals of the people by openly disregarding them.

The successful evasion of one Law may encourage the violation of others and in time breed a contempt for all Laws.

While every citizen owes obedience to the Laws, the Laws should be made fair and equal to every citizen.

The Tax Laws are neither fair nor equal and are productive of deceit and dishonesty and, if for no other reason than this should be changed.

UNIFORM TAXATION.

Property differs so greatly in character and earning power it has always been impossible to tax the various kinds uniformly. Every attempt to tax movable property the same as immovable property has failed and will always fail. "Two wrongs do not make a right," and when assessors find it impossible to discover the ownership of movable property and undertake to square things by lowering the assessment of immovable property, there is no right or justice in it and everybody suffers in mind and matter.

The more stringent the Law to uncover movable property the faster it moves and hides, and this fact is so well established the assessors in most counties let movable property go by default. So-called Uniform taxation is a delusion and a snare. It may suffice to fool the ignorant, but the knowing ones just laugh at it. This is rough on the poor man whose all is in sight and immovable, and is also tough on the rich man who defies the law and hides his wealth from the assessor, for he knows he is doubly guilty in saving himself at the expense of his less fortunate neighbor.

EQUITABLE TAXATION.

The differences in property call for differences in taxation just as "one star differs from another," and yet all the stars and all the property serve their purposes. The man who puts his money in Securities issued on property already taxed and paying more taxes because of the improvements justified by the man's money, is just as useful a citizen as the man who puts his money in lands and houses; but when the first man objects to giving up the greater part of the earnings on his securities, issued on property already taxed, he is looked upon as a tax dodger, and the man with the houses and lands who cannot so readily escape denounces a tax system which seems so unfair. Ask this man to surrender a half to three-fourths of the income from his houses and lands and there would be another tale. The revenue of the first man is limited, while that of the other is unlimited, and yet there are people who cannot see the distinction. Equitable taxation is based on the earning power of all property, in just proportion, and if any partiality is shown it should be in favor of the man who risks his money to improve houses and lands owned by others, which may depreciate, but cannot fly away.

TAX AMENDMENT.

The Tax Amendment was carried by thirty thousand majority two years ago, but because the Secretary of State failed to advertise it ninety instead of sixty days before the election, as the Constitution requires, it must be voted on again at the November Election. The welfare of the State demands the re-adoption of this important measure and every fair-minded citizen should vote for it.

KENTUCKY NEEDS

A good many things to place the State in the rank she deserves in the march of prosperity, but when sifted down the greatest need of all is a new Tax System that will attract instead of repel Capital, which guarantees cheap money for the improvement of farms and development of local industries.

Although one of the oldest States, centrally located and with marvelous natural advantages, other and less favored States have outstripped us and, as someone has aptly said, "Kentucky is an Island of comparative poverty surrounded by a sea of industrial prosperity." And why?

The answer is because of our repellent Tax System. Equitable taxation means cheap money. Easy money means improvement and development. Industrial enterprise keeps the people at home and increases the population. More people means more consumers of our home products. Close markets mean good prices, and all of this has been retarded because some wise acres borrowed a so-called Uniform Tax Law from another State which had been striving to get rid of it for forty years and which shows that an intolerant politician may not always be a tolerable patriot, or Kentucky would not have been throttled in the way she has been.

"Rounding Up" Students.

Ingenuity of college students in writing bad after they have "passed off" the required freshman or sophomore course in composition is extra ordinary. Perhaps it is a reassertion of native inaptitude, perhaps it is sheer carelessness. But the remedy to be adopted at Harvard, after special study of the problem, is a patent one. A standing faculty committee is to be appointed, and "instructors in all courses will be urged to send to the committee any examination book, thesis or other piece of work which has demonstrated the writer's inability to express his thought." The committee will thereupon prescribe additional work in English for the delinquent students. The very warning should end mere slovenliness, and those whose fault lies deeper should be grateful for the discipline.—New York Evening Post.

REAL ESSENCE OF HUMOR

Conjunction of Things That Are Opposite or Dissonant Are the Most Laughable.

It is well known that the essence of humor is incongruity, the conjunction of things that are opposite or dissonant—as the mingling of manliness and gullibility in Fielding's "Parson Adams," of honesty and knavery in "Gill Blas," or of shrewdness and stupidity in Sancho Panza.

The most laughable of incongruities is that which arises from the clash of dignity and meanness, eminence and vulgarity, the solemn and the comic. The sense of the comic is sometimes enhanced by suffering.

When the soul is filled with gloom, a ludicrous incident becomes the more ludicrous by contrast. An Englishman who poisoned himself by mistake told one of his friends that when suffering agonies he was deeply conscious of the grimly ludicrous aspects under which one circumstance succeeded another.

The exquisite irony of the contrast between his own internal sensations and the sunny indifference or stolid surprise of all around him, while he was in a galloping haste to escape death, made an impression upon him which rose above the pain—as, for instance, when his porter asked for leave to change his shoes before he went for the doctor.

SEE PORTENTS IN THE STARS

Enthusiastic Frenchmen Profess to View Promises of Victory in Heavenly "Omens."

Patriotic enthusiasm, now at a high pitch in France, has been seeing in the heavens things which it likes to regard as symbolic of French victory in the war. The most talked of "omen" has been a tricolored star seen over the western horizon last autumn and over the eastern during the winter. Prospective astronomers have kindly identified this marvelous star with Venus, which, like any other heavenly body, shows the spectral colors when it is near the horizon. It is remarkable how often Venus has been taken for something that it is not. One would think that no civilized human being could arrive at years of discretion without becoming well acquainted with that lovely planet under her own name, yet her brilliant light in the evening or morning sky is forever starting some wild rumor. In 1797—also a time of patriotic fervor—Venus was hailed in France as the star of Napoleon. In recent years she has most frequently been taken for the light of a spying Zeppelin or airplane. It may be added that in some parts of France the "tricolor" star of the last few months was not Venus but Sirius.

OFFENSIVE ON EASTERN FRONT

Gen. Stanley Bombards Former Stronghold of Republicans.

40 OTHER SHARP ATTACKS.

Democratic Speeches Ring Throughout the State of Kentucky.

(By Thomas B. Cromwell.)

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 6.—Kentucky Democrats began a great offensive and enveloping movement Monday when Gen. Augustus Owlesley Stanley opened up on the eastern front at Prestonsburg, and some 40 of his aids made oratorical stands in the counties having cities wherein registration of voters is required. Gen. Edwin P. Morrow claims to have strongly fortified and entrenched the Republican forces on the eastern front during his three weeks' campaigning in the hills and mountains, but Gen. Samuel Wilbur Hager has passed the word that Gen. James D. Black has found the g. o. p. army shy on munitions and rations and not so well dug-in as reported from the Republican headquarters by Gen. Morris Galvin. He is sanguine that Gen. Stanley's heavy fire will have a withering effect, and that there will be very little left for the third army composed of Moosemen, who entered the campaign under the leadership of Gens. Fred Drexler and Matt J. Holt, with former Congressman Victor Murdock, of Kansas, as their range-finder, at Covington Wednesday night. Gen. Stanley's positions for the remainder of the week will be Hazard, Thursday; Booneville, Friday, and Compton, Saturday.

The Democratic forces in Louisville were mobilized at the Masonic theater Tuesday night and instructed in strategics by Gens. A. O. Stanley, Edward J. McDermott, Robert W. Bingham and Ben S. Washer. They marched away with the scent of victory in their nostrils and are occupying the strong positions in and about the Falls City. To the same point Thursday night the Progressive leaders brought their small army of braves, and they departed, determined to "battle for the principles enunciated in their platform of 1915," though their chances for winning state offices are little. This brought smiles to the lips of the Democrats and frowns to the brows of the republicans who assembled Saturday in the Masonic theater to get their strategic instruction from Gen. Morrow and Gens. Lewis L. Walker and Ben L. Bruner.

Gen. W. J. Gooch, who is in charge of the artillery division of the Democratic forces, says he has 10 to one more guns than the Republicans and 100 to one more than the Progressives, and that when he gets them all in action the enemy will be so completely routed that long before the decisive battle on November 2 the way to Frankfort for the column headed by Gen. Stanley will have been swept entirely free of obstruction. The Democrats, from the highest to the lowest, are feeling their strength, and they are declaring that their majority is only a question of numbers, according to the manner in which the vote comes out, their only fear being that absence from the polls may result from confidence in success and the notion that their votes are not needed. The Democratic slogan, therefore, is, go to the polls and vote and make the majority the largest ever.

PLANT AT LEAST ONE

TREE THIS FALL.

Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published in Springfield, Ohio, advises all that can to plant at least one tree this fall. Following is the suggestion:

Twenty-five dollars would plant and care for at least five elm trees for a ten-year period. It is a moderate estimate to say that, at the end of the second year, a building lot would be worth a hundred dollars more for their presence. At the end of twenty-five years to man who owns the land on which they stand would take a hundred dollars apiece for them. Plant an elm tree or a maple near your home this fall, and look upon it as a hundred-dollar endowment policy, maturing in 1940, with no premium after first year.

"No one thinks of shade trees as a profitable crop, and yet, of all vegetable growth cultivated by the hand of man, none renders a more generous return."

As the train went roaring across the structure she did not speak a word, but seemed to be holding her breath. "There," said a gentleman in a neighboring seat, "we are over it safely." The old lady heaved an explosive sigh. "Well," she said, "if we had gone to the bottom I should have died with a clear conscience, for it wouldn't have been my weight that did it. I bore up so that I really made the train lighter than it would have been without me!"

BLACK SHEEP ARE REQUIRED

Provisions for Army Uniform Cloth in Case of War—Searching for Good Domestic Dye.

One of the difficulties to be met in the selection of a natural mottled brown for cloth for the army is the shortage of black or brown sheep, says the Army and Navy Journal. In the experiments conducted in the quartermaster corps under the direction of Brig. Gen. Henry G. Sharpe, it has developed that it will require 70 per cent of brown or black wool for the cloth under consideration. A less proportion of dark wool would produce too light a color of cloth and would not meet the requirements of the army.

In peace time, with the present strength of the regular army, there will be no shortage of black wool, but in the event of war it would be necessary to use dyes in producing the cloth for the uniform of a large army. To provide for this contingency, General Sharpe is now conducting investigations to determine whether a domestic dye can be secured for coloring cloth. Unless this can be done the position of the war department will not be improved by adopting the new cloth.

The European war has called attention of the war department to the fact that the present cloth uniforms cannot be produced without the use of German dye-stuffs. This fact is responsible for the effort that is now being made to secure a cloth that can be produced without the importation of any foreign material. Not until the cloth can be found which can be manufactured without the use of such material will there be any change in the uniform of the army.

At length the king became aware of his steward's failure to carry out his orders and awaited the next opportunity to bring the fact to his attention.

He had not long to wait. That night the king stopped his coachman as he entered the courtyard, and upon inquiry found that the man had had nothing to eat since breakfast. He held out a dollar in his hand that the steward had given him to buy food with. Without a word the king took the dollar.

"Eat it!" ordered the king.

"But, your majesty, I—"

"Eat it!" the king again roared.

"Why, your majesty, I can't eat it!"

"Oh, you can't? But you expected the coachman to! Well, in the future just remember that—that people eat food, not money. Do you understand?"

The steward understood; in the future the king's coachmen were amply supplied with provisions whenever they went upon a journey.—Youth's Companion.

GERMANS SINK FAMOUS BARK

Fiery Cross Was Participant in Great Tea Races of '60s—Outlived All Her Contemporaries.

The Norwegian bark Fiery Cross, recently sunk by a German submarine off the Scilly isles, was the celebrated China clipper that figured so prominently in the great tea races of the '60s, says the New York Times. She was built in 1860 to replace the old Fiery Cross, which had been wrecked in the previous year.

Basil Lubbock, in his fascinating work on "The China Clippers," says: "She was commanded on her maiden voyage by Dallas, who had been so successful with the first Fiery Cross. Then Richard Robinson had her until 1866, and under these two famous skippers she proved well-nigh invincible, receiving the premium for the first vessel in dock on no fewer than four occasions, and being only 24 years behind in 1864 and 1866. Besides remaining in the forefront of the racing for years longer than any other vessel, she outlived all her contemporaries."

In the great tea race of 1866, won by the Ariel, the Fiery Cross held the lead for a long time, and when in the Downs was obliged to anchor because of a gale that sprang up. In 1871 she deserted the London trade for that of New York, and was afterward sold to the Norwegians.

One Man's Value.

In the multitude of legislatures founded by Englishmen and their descendants in various parts of the world the hereditary principle has found no place. In former times in England the house of lords stood for a great fact. The magnates of whom it was composed possessed much power, to which fortunately the constitution gave legitimate expression.

It has been the signal merit of the English constitution that it has been capable of modification so as to keep abreast of the facts.

In this twentieth century of ours Great Britain, like the United States, like Canada and like England's great colonies can only be governed by the frank acceptance of democratic principles.

We have to reconcile old forms with modern sentiment and habit of thought. Everywhere the theory that one man is as good as another is recognized as lying at the base of modern constitutional systems.

To Make All Shoes Comfortable.

Everyone hates to break in a new shoe and doubtless with this idea in mind two Milwaukee inventors, Harry M. Klingenberg and Arthur H. Inbusch, have patented No. 1,140,599, a machine for breaking in shoes in which there is an endless belt traveling over a suitable base and leglike levers have suitable foot portions to receive the shoes and are operated to move in simulation of a walking action upon the traveling platform so that the shoes may be actually broken in by a walking movement.—Scientific American.

United States Gold and Silver. The value of all the gold produced in the United States from 1792 to January 1, 1914, is estimated by the United States geological survey at $3,549,799,400; the value of silver at $1,709,817,800.

LESSON FOR KING'S STEWARD

Frederick William III of Prussia Was Man of Few Words—Interested Himself in Details.

King Frederick William III of Prussia was a man of few words; whatever he had to say was always brief and to the point, as the following anecdote from a foreign journal shows:

The king, who was accustomed to interest himself in all the details of court management, ordered his steward to take special pains to see that all the carriages and wagons were amply supplied with food and drink whenever they left for a journey of a day or so; but it sometimes happened that the steward failed in his duty and dispatched the drivers without any food, giving them a coin, perhaps, to buy what they wanted. That usually meant that the driver went hungry, as he did not have much opportunity to leave his horses and dine at a shop or restaurant.

At length the king became aware of his steward's failure to carry out his orders and awaited the next opportunity to bring the fact to his attention. He had not long to wait. That night the king stopped his coachman as he entered the courtyard, and upon inquiry found that the man had had nothing to eat since breakfast. He held out a dollar in his hand that the steward had given him to buy food with. Without a word the king took the dollar.

"Eat it!" ordered the king.

"But, your majesty, I—"

"Eat it!" the king again roared.

"Why, your majesty, I can't eat it!"

"Oh, you can't? But you expected the coachman to! Well, in the future just remember that—that people eat food, not money. Do you understand?"

The steward understood; in the future the king's coachmen were amply supplied with provisions whenever they went upon a journey.—Youth's Companion.

SCOTCH COLLIE IN COURT

With Assistance of Child Friends Dog Comes Out of Difficulty With Flying Colors.

A Scotch collie dog was acquitted in police court recently of the charge of being "fierce and vicious," says a Jackson, Mich., dispatch to the New York World. The complaint, which was directed against the owner, John De Landers, but meant far more to the dog's welfare than to John's, was signed by T. P. Murphy, a street car motorman. Mr. Murphy resides at 310 Bush street and Mr. De Landers at 307 Bush street.

Each of them owns a dog, and recently the two animals participated in a chewing match on Mr. Murphy's front porch. The latter's little girl tried to pass them at the time they were "scrapping" and the Scotch collie snarled and snapped at her, perhaps thinking she was bent on stopping the fight.

Mr. Murphy testified that while the dog did not bite the child and he could not say the canine had ever bitten any one, still he contended the Scotch collie had a disposition to be barking and stirring up a row.

"He is a regular fight promoter and a nuisance in the neighborhood," said the complainant to the judge.

The defendant had brought into court a raft of children who have been in the habit of playing with the dog, and they declared the dog was all right. Then came the dog's turn, and he took the stand in his own defense, jumped up into the witness chair, wagged his tail, blinked his eyes and extended his tongue and shook himself joyously as Judge Dahlem talked to him and asked him if it were true that he was ever naughty.

"He never bites, just plays," remarked one of the children while patting him on the back.

The judge concluded the dog was not vicious or dangerous and returned a verdict of not guilty.

SHY AT ALL INNOVATIONS

Humanity Slow to Recognize Even the Things of Life That Are the Best.

Few good things get a hearty welcome when they knock at the door. Human nature shies at innovation, and can be persuaded to adopt it only after pioneers have worn the blush of newness off and stood firm until ridicule has crawled back into its hole.

We hope that the young men who are wearing what the haberdashers call "sport shirts" will prove worthy pioneers, proof against laughter, strong in the face of irrational prejudice. For, by their services, mankind may escape the tyranny of the hard boiled collar. The day may come when the morning wrestling with buttons and buttonholes which hate each other like sin will be like the memory of a boyhood nightmare. That sawmill effect which collars occasionally get and the clammy strangling that goes with humid days will go down in the books as evils conquered. All because a few courageous young men in every community place the good of their fellows above the sensitiveness of their souls.—Toledo Blade.

Even on the Mountain Top.

Smith lived in a neighborhood where there were many pianos, phonographs, barky dogs and sweet children, and, finding that sleep was impossible, he began to look around for a quiet retreat. Finally he found it on the top of a mountain, and great was his happiness.

One day, however, he appeared in town looking extremely sad, and his friends quickly questioned him as to the cause.

"It's no use, boys," he responded in a dejected voice. "It is simply a waste of time to fight the inevitable."

"Yesterday a young man came up on the mountain," explained Smith, "and pitched a tent near my bungalow. This morning he told me that he was going to spend the summer there learning to play the violin."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Pudding Sure Sign of Battle.

A British soldier who wears the ribbon of South Africa, was asked while on leave at home recently, whether the soldiers knew for long beforehand when they are going to be called upon to deliver an assault.

"Well, they don't exactly tell us, but we always know," he replied, adding, rather grimly, "you see, if a number of army chaplains suddenly turn up, we can always guess that something good and hard is going to be asked of us shortly. If they serve us with pudding for dinner before we go into the trenches, why, then we know for certain!"

Not Needed.

Professor Munsterberg has invented an apparatus which indicates whether a party engaged in conversation is telling the truth. In the case of some people we know the contrivance is not needed to show that they are lying.—New Orleans States.

Antiseptic Vaccine.

A Great British physician, Sir Almroth Wright has invented an antiseptic vaccine. By inoculation, it is hoped, a soldier before going into battle may be made proof against the infection of wounds.

Good Excuse.

"John, what possessed you to buy my chow-chow dog?"

"I don't know, Maria, unless I was pickled."

Nearly Smothered.

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augustia Lomax, of this place, writes: "I had smothering spells every day, so bad I expected death at any time. I could not sit up in bed. I suffered from womanly troubles. My nerves were unstrung. I had almost given up all hope of ever being better. I tried Cardui, and it did me more good than anything I had ever taken. I am better now than I ever expected to be." Thousands of ladies have written similar letters, telling of the merits of Cardui. It relieved their headache, backache and misery, just as it will relieve yours, if you will let it. SINGING INSECTS OF JAPAN

Are Kept as Pets by Every Class of People in the Empire of the Mikado.

The season of singing insects usually begins on May 28, the fair day of the Fukagawa Fudo temple—an immemorial custom observed by the insect fanciers of Tokyo. From that date on insect dealers carrying cages swarming with chirping pets will be seen at evening fairs or in the streets. Singing insects are favored by every class of people in Japan. The late Empress Shoken was noted for her fancy for kantan, a species of singing insect. H. I. H. the Crown Prince Hirohito is known to keep kajika or singing frogs himself. And H. I. H. Prince Fushimi is well versed in the knowledge of all the chirping varieties.

It is understood that the imperial household department orders insects from Torisan, an insect dealer in Yotsuya, who is also patronized by the Mitsu family.

Besides this man there are two famous fanciers, one being Mr. Komiya at Kanda, while the other is Mr. Kawazumi, Yoyogi, a suburb of this city. The current price of the insects a head runs from 2½ cents for grasshoppers to 12½ cents for kantan and umaomoi.

The insects must be kept in the shade and never in the sun, nor be sprinkled with water.

Enormous Biplane.

The Russian Sikorsky biplane, is the largest heavier-than-air machine yet invented. It has a wing-surface at least five times greater than that of the commodious Farman biplane. Its steel frame is 22 yards long. Its dead weight is over three and a half tons, and it can carry a "useful load" of over a ton. At least a quarter of a ton would consist of explosives. Nearly half a ton of fuel and oil is carried. The space between the planes is nine feet deep. The forepart of the machine consists of steel-walled cabins, extending over a length of about 30 feet. These cabins have large windows on each side, like those of an omnibus. The cabins are electrically lit at night. In cold weather they are heated through the exhaust.

Fact Versus Theory.

Certain theorists maintain that men and the so-called lower animals are what they eat. But Queenie, a year-old Bronx pet, entirely disproves the theory in person. Queenie is a baby lioness who has been reared on a nursing bottle, ginger snaps and soothing syrup, but she attacked a laborer in New York with the same ferocity she would have evinced had she been fed rich, raw red meat instead.—Buffalo Times.

Argentine Wines.

Production of wine in Argentina is one of the most important industries of the country. In 1913 the record production of 110,000,000 gallons was reached. Practically all of the wine produced in Argentina is of a common variety, and for table use only. The exportation of Argentine wines is very limited.

Not Sure of Herself.

Even members of the family had to look twice to be sure as to "who was who" of the twins. But they didn't put different colored hair ribbons on them until the day when grandma, coming into the living room, said to the small person looking out of the window, "Is it Josie or Rosie?" And the twin replied, "I think it's Josie."

Building Character.

When an architect plans a great building, and specifies the dimensions of pillars, arches and walls, he has to be guided by a knowledge of the strength of the material he is to use. Bricks and floor tile must be tested as to the pressure they will bear, for crumbling stone and defective iron may bring loss and disaster later. But we are not so careful in the building of character. We fancy that weakness in one place may be counterbalanced by strength in another; that a few good habits set over against some bad habits average up pretty well, and that the days of careless building, when we are in no mood to do our best, may be atoned for by extra good work further on. Many a life goes down in ruin before some sudden temptation just because of this building into it of poor material unfit to stand a strain.

Unusual Offer To Our Readers.

Escaped Disease.

Typhus, which under the name of "prison fever," was once rampant in England, held no terrors for John Howard, the prison reformer. While in a cell he would hold to his nose a phial of aromatic vinegar, and on going home would wash and change his clothes, though even these precautions he later abandoned. People thought his powers bordered on the magical, pressed him for his secret, and refused to believe his explanations that his immunity was due to fearlessness, cleanliness and temperance. He ate no flesh, and very little of anything; he drank neither wine nor spirits, and went to bed early and rose early. And his asceticism enabled him to let light into the most noisome dungeons and to live to the age of sixty-four years.

27 APPLES ARE PUT IN ONE BUSHEL

Henderson County Winesaps
The World's Finest--60,000
Barrels in Storage.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 6.—Evansville cold storage houses are now receiving 60,000 barrels of apples, the greater bulk coming from surrounding territory, and the finest in quality coming from Henderson county, Ky.

The Henderson winesaps bid fair to become the most talked about apple in the world. The Kentucky product is pronounced by experts to surpass in size, color and flavor the best produced in the northwest.

The production in the Henderson county orchards is running close to 100 barrels to the acre and is selling at $1.50 to $2.50 a barrel, thus giving a return of $150 to $250 an acre to the grower.

Within the past ten years Henderson county has planted 2,000 acres in apple trees, half of which are bearing now. On the Henry P. Barrett farm there is an orchard of 30 acres now bearing and 50 acres in young trees which will begin bearing in two or three days from h s orchard this year. Mr. Barrett is packing many bushel boxes containing only 30 apples, such is their extraordinary size. For the Kentucky state fair he packed a bushel box of 27 apples, each of which weighed almost two pounds. In color and all other requirements these apples are perfect.

The Kentucky apples, due to the scientific manner in which the orchards are handled and the fruit is gathered and packed, are commanding the top prices. Henderson county apples get more sunshine than the apples raised in the northwest and have natural moisture, instead of irrigation.

EASY TO PLEASE

"Do you prefer any particular month to get married in?"

French Soldiers' ways.

A lieutenant describes in Everyman's Belgian Supplement the soldiers of France as "big children." He says that the foundation of the army of the republic is the peasant who has a simplicity that makes him docile to the dictates of discipline and the orders of his superiors. A democracy is growing in the army that did not before exist. "You may," he says, "be as exacting as you like, regarding the divers service duties. For three or six months of rainy winter you may make them work 14 hours a day at earthworks exposed to shot and shell if you treat them as friends; if you trouble about their meals, their footgear, their straw bedding, and above all if you swear at them, when they do impudent things. You can get wonderful results out of them; if you tickle their vanity, they are charmed, they adopt you, they would face death to fetch you if you lay wounded on the field."

Pay of Capital Employees.

Uncle Sam has more than 36,000 employees in Washington to whom he pays an average of $1,135 a year, or a total of about $41,140,000. The highest average salaries are paid to White House employees who get $3,900 a year, and the lowest is paid to employees in the state, war and navy building, averaging $560 a year. Co-operative buying is now practiced by a part of the employees, and it is suggested that this and other co-operative activities might be profitably practiced by the entire army of Uncle Sam's workers in the capital city.

Exceptions.

"How do you mean?"

"I mean it is quite possible to sow wild oats and reap a crop of lemons."

PURSUING POLLY

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

Peter sat up, ran his fingers through his towed hair and beamed at Polly like a benevolent imp. "I don't see what you want to rush off to New York for. You won't make good, Polly. You girls think after you've sung in the choir in a dinky little town like Waneta all you have to do is get up on a stage and be a prima donna quicker's seat. Buell says—"

"I don't care to hear it, Peter."

"What on earth have you got against Buell Abbott? Rising young lawyer, and, by Jiminy, he will rise sure enough. He's going up in an airplane."

"For pity's sake!" exclaimed Mrs. Wadieight. Polly looked at Peter with doubt and suspicion in her eyes and the time table in her hand.

"He is. I heard him talking to some fellows at the post office, and he said he'd just as soon go as not."

Polly went out of the room with her nose tilted at rather a scornful angle. It was quite like Buell to say such a thing in Pete's hearing to be sure it reached her ears and would make her worry about him.

Polly decided that nothing could ever make her worry or trouble herself again about Mr. Abbott. She was not interested in his goings or comings, or ascensions for that matter. Safe in her own room, she stood before the oval mahogany-framed mirror, and looked at the face that stared so haughtily, so uncompromisingly, back at her. The eyes were very blue, startlingly blue, with dark lashes and eyebrows, and her hair, too, was dark. Polly liked to take it and pile it high on her head, with a few loose curls at her temple and ears, like a picture of the Empress Josephine she had cut from a magazine and pinned on the wall. It was a pity someone had not planned an opera around Josephine, she thought. She would have loved singing arias of defiance at some stocky Napoleon.

Buell was rather stocky. Tall, but broad shouldered, and rather inclined to take things too easy. Yes, that was exactly the whole trouble, Polly decided for the hundredth time. He didn't have a thrill of romance or temperamental excitement in his whole make-up.

It had always seemed natural for Buell to be her sweetheart, natural for him to ask her quite casually one evening a few months ago, "Which side of the railroad track do you want to live on, Polly, after we're married?"

That was the way Buell proposed, that of the divine fire of love in his heart. And it was Buell all over. Polly had rebelled from that minute. She did not select her favorite side of the track either. She told Mr. Abbott that she thought of running down to New York and studying for grand opera. And Buell had stared at her for a minute in utter amazement before he had actually laughed at her and chuckled.

"You're not, really, Polly?"

"Oh, but I am," insisted Polly. "I'm going next week."

All during her preparation for the trip she thought of him until by the time she took the train for New York she almost relented and called him up to say good-bye. Somehow he seemed rather noncommittal and not half so anxious as she had expected.

It was around Poughkeepsie, half way down the Hudson, that Polly noticed the other passengers watching something from the windows, something very exciting. When she looked out she saw hovering over the river a flying ship like a great bird. Straight down it came toward the racing train. As it passed them, the engine emitted a shriek of salute, and the people called from the windows and platforms, waving caps and handkerchiefs; but Polly drew back into her own seat, with wide, almost frightened eyes. Over the telephone Buell had told her last of all:

"Remember our favorite song, 'Loch Lomond,' Polly? Well, listen to this, and it's a promise—

"You take the high road and I'll take the low road.

And I'll be in Scotland before you."

Now she knew what he meant. Slow, easy going, unromantic Buell had chosen the most sensational route to follow and overtake his sweetheart on her journey after fame and fortune. Outdistancing the train, the aeroplane alighted at Tarrytown, and when the express pulled in Buell stood smiling on the platform, his hat off, bowing in response to the greeting cheers.

As soon as he had found Polly he shook hands laughingly and settled down into the seat beside her.

"I've told the other chap, Chapin, he can go back without me," he said calmly. "Made pretty good time, didn't we?"

Polly looked at him with a new expression of admiration in her wide eyes.

"I don't see why you ever did such a wild thing, Buell," she said helplessly.

"Don't you?" he replied cheerfully. "Well, I had to catch you before you reached Aunt Eudora, didn't I? Now, as soon as we reach New York I can explain matters to her, Polly, and we'll be married at her house and go back to Waneta."

Polly smiled. Some way her contemplated career was fading like the aeroplane vanishing behind them in the blue sky.

"I suppose I must, I'll tell," she said. (Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

SON TO CONTEST SPALDING'S WILL

Declares Millionaire Sporting Goods Man Unduly Influenced By Second Wife.

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 5.—Contest of the will of the late A. G. Spalding, baseball pioneer and millionaire sporting goods merchant, was to be entered today immediately after the filing of the will for probate, by Spalding's son, Keith, who charges that the will was procured through the "undue influence of his wife, Elizabeth Churchill Spalding, and Mrs. Katherine Tingley, head of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society at Point Loma, Cal. Spalding died at his residence in Point Loma, September 9 last.

The contest alleges that for several years before his death Spalding was not in his right mind; that his mental and physical strength was impaired by advancing age, by sickness and by business worries. About $2,000,000 was accumulated by Spalding and his first wife, who died in 1899, according to the contestor. This, says Keith Spalding, was the result of the joint industry of his father and mother and was accumulated before the second marriage, which took place in 1900.

At the time of her marriage to Spalding, says the contestor, Mrs. Elizabeth Churchill was the intimate friend of Katherine Tingley in "a theosophical brotherhood at Point Loma," and was "held out by Mrs. Tingley to the public and to Elizabeth Churchill Spalding as her successor in the command of the work and institution."

Immediately after the marriage, the document continues, Mrs. Spalding persuaded her husband to take up his residence within the grounds of the theosophical institution. The purpose of this, it is alleged, "upon information and belief," was to alienate Spalding from his son.

Mrs. Elizabeth Churchill Spalding, the widow, who filed the will for probate and who was named as executrix, estimated the estate to be worth $600,000. Keith Spalding was under the terms of the will to receive $100,000, of which amount he had already received $65,000. The adopted son, Albert Spalding, was also bequeathed $100,000, of which he received $1,000. The remainder of the estate was left to Mrs. Spalding.

Ain't It Awful, Mabel?

Oh, fair to behold is my Mabel,
And stunning the style of her dress;
For months I have longed to be able
This most charming maid to possess.
But of late there's one thing that has threatened
My love of its ardor to rob—
When I take her to dine
And this angel of mine
Attempts to eat corn on the cob.
Her form is the form of a Venus,
Her smile sends a thrill through my heart;
There's been never a cross word between us,
Yet I feel that some day we must part.
For, although every moment I'm with her
Dan Cupid is right on the job,
He is filled with dismay,
For his darts go astray
When my sweetheart eats corn on cob.

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—The United States submarines K-3, K-4, K-7 and K-8 were proceeding today under their own power for the naval station at Honolulu, T. H., 2,200 miles distant. Ten days will be required for the trip. The cruiser Maryland, naval collier Nanshan, tug Iroquois and torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence, are acting as convoys.

The Story of Pocahontas.

For a hundred years the school children of the United States have been edified by the tale of how the lovely Indian princess, Pocahontas, saved the life of that romantic adventurer, Captain John Smith.

The basis of this story is an account written by Smith, who had led a long life of adventure in the east. Various writers have from time to time had the temerity to doubt the story, but this has had no effect upon the popular imagination and the story of Captain Smith and Pocahontas became one of the fixtures of American history. Now, however, there comes a writer who boldly disputes the authenticity of the story and declares that Captain Smith was a romancer, pure and simple, and that he told this story because it helped make a book he wrote eight years after the adventure, more readable than it would otherwise have been.

According to the testimony of certain historians who have been conducting a more or less exhaustive research into the subject, Smith wrote his first book in 1616 and at that time had made but brief mention of an episode which saved his life.

Eight years later he published another book and this time he gives all the details. But the cold-blooded historians of the present day evidently have a "pick" on Captain Smith, for Professor Edward Channing, the well-known educator, is quoted in Harper's Magazine as referring to:

The utter unreliability of Smith's account entirely apart from the Pocahontas story.

The average reader will, however, agree with Professor Albert Hart, when he asks what is to be gained by thus cruelly destroying one of the most cherished tales of childhood, a tale that has entertained millions of young Americans? The proof is somewhat inferential. Capt. Smith was a fact, Pocahontas was a fact and the great Emperor Powhatan was a fact. Smith was captured and condemned to death.
